Catastrophes will take our minds off Tiger

And other news predictions for 2010

Tiger Woods will be glad to read this:

War in Iran! Nuclear bomb in Chicago! Tsunami ravages India! Quake flattens Frisco! Yellowstone explodes! Drought in the Deep South!

Just some of the cheery predictions from tarot queen Tara Greene.

Whew, eh, Tiger? Finally, we'll have something else to talk about.

Unless Mr. Woods has bimbo explosions awaiting in Iran, Chicago, India, Frisco, Yellowstone or Alabama.

You know, if I'd listened to Anthony Carr, the World's Most Documented Psychic, I'd have told you a year ago that Tiger was headed for heavy rough.

That he would be "publicly humiliated when steel balls, cleverly disguised in his driver to ensure extra power, are uncovered," as Tony wrote in his Stargazer — Predictions and Prophecies.

Okay, the details are slightly off-line, but ...

"Following this, the only long drives he'll make will be in his car — to the countryside, trying to escape the embarrassment."

Not bad, eh? And you thought fortune-telling was a farce.

Over to you, World's Most Documented Psychic.

"President Obama is caught in flagrante delicto with both Sarah Palin and Hillary Clinton."

C'mon, Tony, get serious.

"Prince Charles turns his back on the British crown for emotional reasons. Prince Andrew ascends."

Andrew!?!? Please, not Andrew!!

"Fidel Castro finally keels over."

Have a cigar.

"Killer wasps invade the White House."

Yes, some WASPS still aren't keen on a black president.

"Stephen Harper wins four terms ... and I'm not even a conservative."

"But the next prime minister is a woman."

Excellent. Maybe now, Tiger Woods will play the Canadian Open.
