Hitler, bin Laden show fanatic traits

Osama bin Laden, like Adolf Hitler, has the hand of a fanatic, says renowned Toronto psychic Anthony Carr.

Carr has studied the palms of both terrorist mastermind bin Laden and Nazi tyrant Adolf Hitler and says he has discovered some startling similarities.

Hitler's hand is the heavier and thicker materialistic type (given his childhood poverty).

Bin Laden's is more delicately constructed and points to a certain degree of "refinement" (given he was born into wealth that could afford him the best education).

However, both hand types belong to rabid fanatics.

Hitler had a powerful air hand (square palm, average-length fingers), indicating organized thinking. And he also had a strong, well-developed thumb, with a tip wider and thicker than its second section, indicating a powerful, bombastic personality that books no opposition whatsoever and is unafraid of danger.

Add to this powerful thumb, the strong and fleshy mount of Venus (that flashy prominence beneath the thumb, inside the Lifeline) and a long first or index finger of Jupiter, which is longer than the third (or Apollo finger), and you have an incredibly strong, confident egocentric individual.

From analyzing only these three aspects — Thumb, Jupiter finger and Venus Mount — we can deduce a "gung-ho" aggressive type. Success at any cost.

Looking at these same three aspects in bin Laden's hand, we are immediately struck by its delicateness.

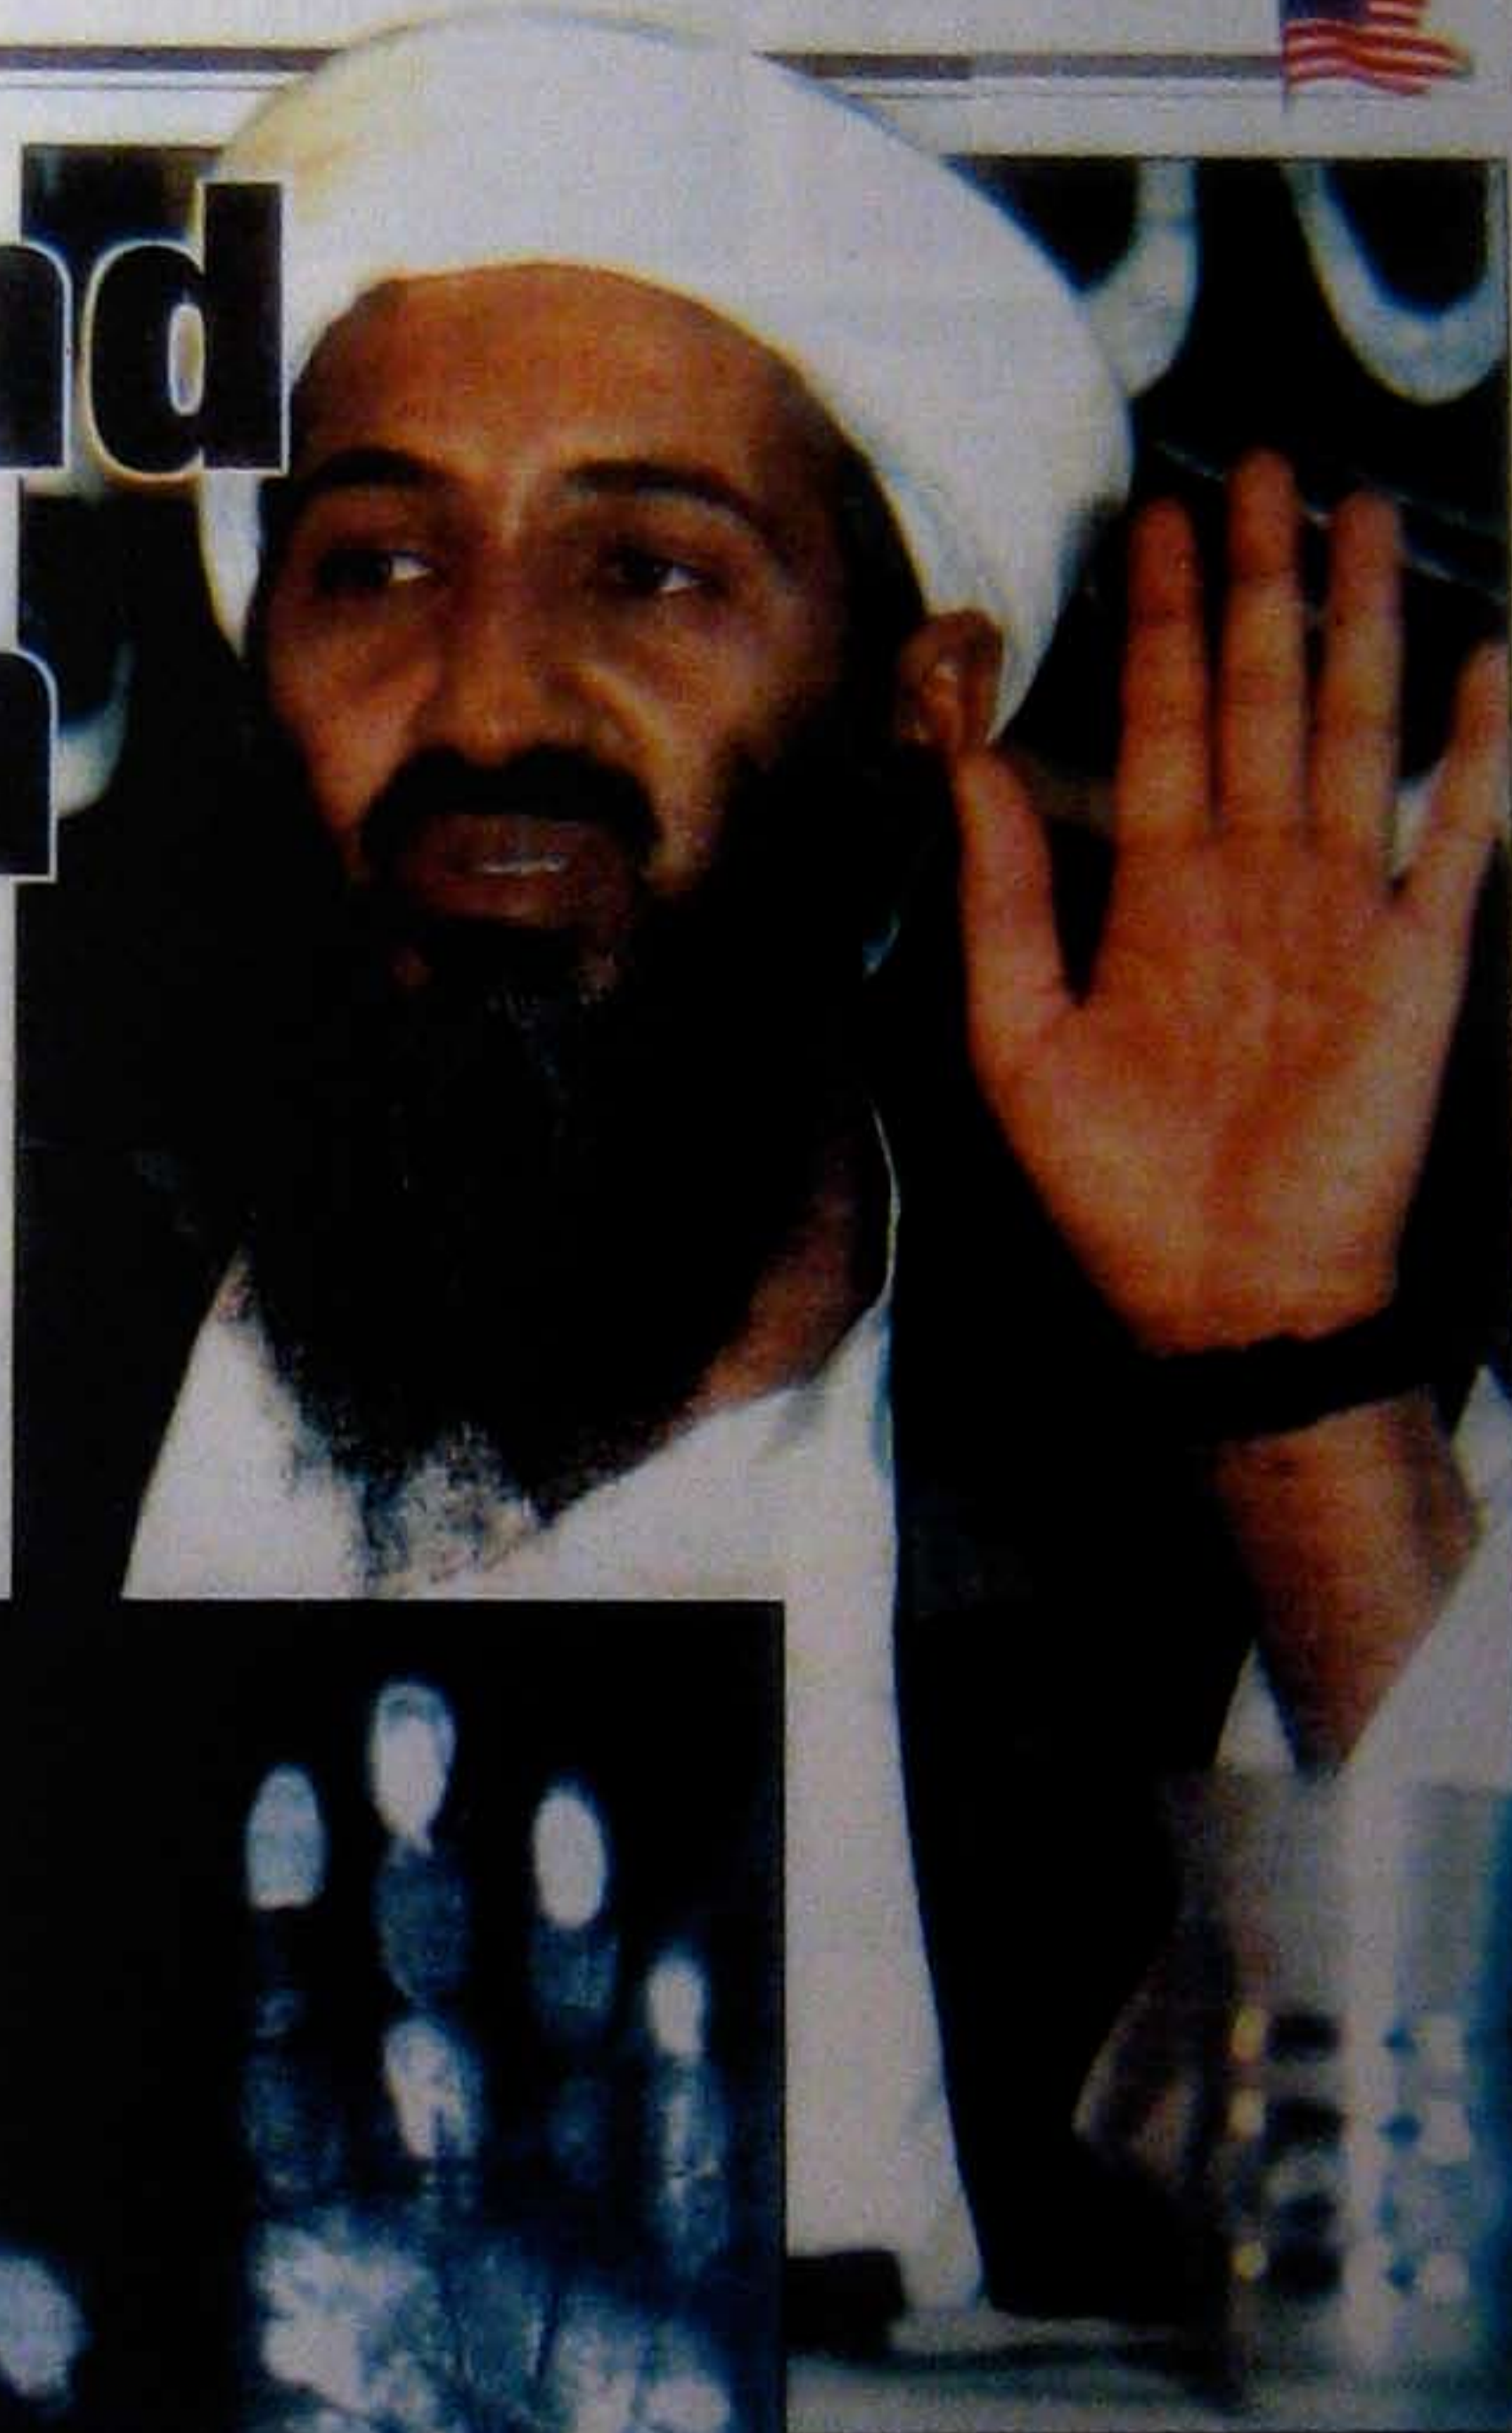

His hand is the Fire-type (narrow, long palm with short fingers — meaning, shorter than the palm) — but no less a fanatic, even though less physical and more on the "mental" level.

A Fire hand is great at making worldly plans but hates the detailed work necessary to make it work. This hand type is impulsive and erratic, preferring to leave the logistics to longer-fingered co-workers.

Bin Laden's thumb, though not as normal and thick as Hitler's, is extremely long, which makes up for what it lacks in sturdiness. The tip is still well-developed, which indicates a cool, methodical approach to goals, whether it be the complete subjugation of women — or the world.

And when you look at his Mount of Venus, which is not as well developed as Hitler's (indicating physical ardour or passion on the "earthy" level), in connection with the cool, methodical long thumb, and then add a tremendous inferiority complex, shown by the short finger of Jupiter — shorter than the third, or Apollo finger — and you get a very "insecure-in-his-heart" tyrant who would not dare let the world know his true nature.

Hitler was the opposite personality: The longer first finger of Jupiter — longer than the third — tells us he believed that he was "chosen by God" to rule and that any decision he made was always the right one, whereas bin Laden and his short Jupiter finger is full of doubts and insecurity. Bin Laden, like Hitler, has the gift of oratory; both their baby (Mercury) fingers are longer and straighter than average (not crooked or bent) with long, nearly pointed tip-phalanges, betraying great power to sway the masses with mesmerizing speeches. Both Jupiter fingers (index fingers) are equally pointed, signposting not only a desire to lead people, but sheer brute force in Hitler's case, because of his long first finger, and in bin Laden's case, a desire to lead through "vocal" and "religious" persuasion, because of his great insecurity. And one last, interesting note: Both Lifelines are short and terminate nearly at the same place, three-quarters of the way down the hand, on the Venus Mount. Hitler died violently (see star at end of Lifeline, p. 30). Osama bin Laden's Lifeline is very short. I predict he will never see 40.
